

SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 5, 2015

Water rationing to begin for Peshastin Irrigation District

by Christine Pratt | July 18, 2015, 12:18 p.m.

3

PESHASTIN — The approximately 800 people who receive water from the Peshastin Irrigation District will be asked to reduce their usage by one-third starting this week.

The call to ration is the first since 2005, when drought conditions were also present, Tony Jantzer, manager of both the Peshastin and Icicle irrigation districts, said Saturday.

Stay with the story. Get full access to The Wenatchee World online for just pennies a day!

- For as little as 27 cents a day, you can have complete access to all the local news, photos and video content from North Central Washington's primary news source.
- Read on any device, whether smartphone, tablet or computer.
- Your online access is free with any print subscription. Or, subscribe online only by the month or year.
- Note: If you are already a print subscriber but haven't yet activated your online account, click here to complete the activation process.

View my options

or

Sign in